

presented to the customer. The supplier can get information - perhaps in the form of a graph - of that particular customer's buying pattern with the supplier, with an indication of the change which may have occurred when the customer was